

Ginny Grossman

Ginny Grossman has worked to enhance learning and development throughout her career. Her qualifications include a Bachelor's Degree in the Fine Arts (University of Notre Dame, 1987), Master of Communications (Rowan University, 1992), and Master of Educational Administration (Rider University, 2003) along with Chief School Administrator and Principal Standard Certifications. Notable achievements include being named the 2017 Burlington County Superintendent of the Year and receiving the 2003 Robert Foose Award in Educational Administration. Her significant administrative experience spans over two decades, culminating as Chief School Administrator - Superintendent of School positions where she has led initiatives to improve instruction, academic achievement, and budgetary savings through effective curriculum coordination and shared services. Furthermore, she has demonstrated leadership in professional development, including serving as Chairperson of the NJASA Professional Development Committee and collaborating on the establishment of guidelines for the Teacher Leader Endorsement on the New Jersey Department of Education Teacher Leader Advisory Board.

Areas of Specialty:

- Strategic Professional Development
- Translating Cognitive Science into Classroom
- Fostering Robust Teacher Leadership